Brian Koo, DDS

• General Dentistry

Happy patients and beautiful smiles are abundant at Dental Artistry of Livingston. That's because Dr. Brian Koo and his devoted team continually strive to elevate the patient experience through highly personalized care. "This is where the science is headed and we're setting new standards in patient-centered, individualized treatment every day," says Dr. Koo, who believes in educating patients so they fully understand their options.

This family practice treats multiple generations of patients, providing everything from preventive care to full mouth restoration. Dr. Koo credits much of his success to the invaluable partnership he shared with practice founder, Dr. Howard Ehrenkranz, who retired in 2016 after 40 years of service. He also is grateful for the talented specialists and hard-working staff who place their confidence and trust in his capable hands. "I feel fortunate to carry on the practice's legacy of high-quality, comfortable and compassionate care," he says.

Dr. Koo's motivation to achieve extraordinary knowledge and skill has led him to complete one of the most rigorous programs for advanced education in aesthetics and implant restorations. A graduate of the prestigious Kois Center for continuing education in Seattle, Washington, he plans to teach there some day.

An alumnus of Columbia University School of Dental and Oral Surgery, Dr. Koo was also a junior faculty member there and served on the board of admissions. He performed his advanced training residency with a focus on cosmetic dentistry at NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital, and is a member of several national as well as local dental organizations.
